Victor Listed in Sunday Times Hiscox Tech Track 100 for Fifth Consecutive Year

LONDON, September 8th, 2019 - On demand jet charter company, Victor (flyvictor.com) continues to fly high with national recognition for outstanding growth.

For the fifth consecutive year Victor has been ranked as one of Britain's top 100 fastest growing tech companies in The Sunday Times' Tech Track rankings published on 8th September 2019.

The Sunday Times Hiscox Tech Track 100 league table ranks Britain's top 100 private tech (TMT) companies based on sales growth over their latest three years. The league table is compiled by Fast Track and published in The Sunday Times each September.

Since Victor's first listing in the Tech Track 100 in 2015, Victor has grown 49.56% on average per annum. This year, the company is ranked alongside other leading entrepreneurial technology companies including Perkbox, TransferWise and Thread.

Launched in 2011, Victor rewrote the jet charter rulebook with a fully-transparent, subscription-free, global marketplace. Victor continues to disrupt and revolutionise the private aviation industry thanks to its award-winning combination of high-tech innovation and high-touch customer service to deliver the best in class service for private jet charterers across the globe.

In 2019, the company has continued to disrupt the private aviation sector with a world-first commitment to 200% carbon offsetting on all flights as a minimum as part of an industry-first climate action campaign, becoming the first jet charter business to take such significant action against the industry's carbon footprint.

Clive Jackson, CEO and Founder at Victor, comments: "The entire Victor team is honoured to be recognised for our ongoing hard work delivering a cutting-edge product which ensures we continue to grow and stay at the top of an extremely competitive industry. I would also like to thank our strategic partners - BP Ventures – who have played a key role in Victor's continued journey of high-growth and leading innovation since their investment in 2018."
